POWER TO THE PEOPLE

BUSES - WILL THERE BE ANOTHER ALONG IN A MINUTE?

As usual, Bollington has risen to the occasion and forcibly expressed its response to Cheshire East Council's suggestion that they may remove subsidy from the 10a bus service from Macclesfield to Ingersley Road, This would practically curfew non car owning residents after 6pm on Monday to Saturday.

he didn't go home empty handed. There was a big and vocal turn out. Chris was well up to the task and was very open about the level of the subsidy (circa £12k) and the usage which was about 900 passengers per week. However, he was aware of the unique situation in Bollineton and felt that in terms of the decision making "line" Bollington was very close to it and accented the social. leisure and employment arguments put forward. He was also aware of the high level of response to this issue from Bollington, similar to the number 11 service to Kerridge which had been retained. Supplied with hundreds of names on petitions, plus letters and emails, Cheshire Fast's Cabinet met on Monday 15th to discuss this and other routes and after a lengthy discussion, the Portfolio Holder, Councillor Rod Menlove, decided to consult with Arriva buses before he would confirm the continued running of the 10a.

ALL THAT GLISTERS...

London 2012 brings bronze and silver medals for the Clegg family in the paralympics! What an achievement for Libby and James Clegg who spent many of their childhood years here in Bollington. The Clegg siblings are totally blind, but inspite of this they now compete with elite athletes around the world in their chosen sports of running (Libby) and swimming (James).

From about seven years old Libby started to sit closer to the television and have her nose right up to school books at St Gregory's school where she was a pupil, but being a quiet child and the oldest of four siblings she didn't complain and it wasn't until two years later that the local GP gave the devastating news that Libby was almost totally blind. At this point her confidence had gone and she was retreating into her own world - her glimmer of hope was her running. She started running with sighted athletes at Macclesfield Harriers and she was soon her as she struggled to adjust to her new isolating, introspective sightless

Moving to Scotland was the only option for the Clegg family when two of Libby's younger brothers with the control of the control of the beard new start for both Libby and James as they went to a school for the blind where their disability was 'normal' and their extraordinary gifts for running and swimming were realised and nutrued. They could start to frust people again, they learn the falling the country of the to CCSE's and most importantly they were no longer defined by their Libby decided 'I can run' and she poured all her energies into her training. This hard work and determination was revarded as she started to win medals all over the world. In 2008 she won her first, parahymic silver medal in Beijing. This success inspired her younger brother James to follow in her footsteps.

LIBBY ONCE SPENT TWO HUNGRY DAYS IN BEIJING BECAUSE SHE DIDN'T KNOW WHERE THE FOOD WAS IN THE VAST DINING AREA...

Photographs of Libby and James Clegg with their Paralympic Medals provided by the Clegg Family lames first started to swim in Scotland and soon discovered that he was 'quite good at it'. London 2012 was his first paralympics entered as a 'wild card' - he came away with a well-deserved bronze medal. James was bowled over by his success - which of course has to be communicated verbally to the athletes at the end of the race because they can't see who has won. He is naturally a quiet person but has a fantastic humour. Strumming his guitar at home he has special tunes for different family members as they come and go about the house.

Neither Libby nor James use a white stick – Libby was adamant that people would not see her disability first and James has followed her lead. Now they both live independently coping with daily difficulties that sighted people don't even think of – Where are the plates for dinner? Where is the drink someone just made for me! Learning to be ordered at home putting, things where they can find them again and having a regimented kitchen are second nature to people with no sight. The difficult part comes with the interaction with sighted people who don't think when they put the milk hack in the fridge on a different shelf or leave the top off the jam or push the codes table to the jam or push the codes table to Libby once spent two hungy days at the Beijing Paralympics because she didn't know where the food was in the wast dining area and so could not join in the self-service system. We don't think of the day-to-day things that are hard if not impossible for someone who is blind' said a friend.

Libby completed her degree at Loughborough University and now lives in Loughborough dividing her time between her training, competing in competitions around the world and helping other people into sport so others can realise their dreams too!

Libby and James are not only great athletes whose names now are written in paralympic history but they are also shining examples to us all that no matter how difficult our personal handicap may be, nothing is beyond our achievement, when heart and mind are involved.

Well done Libby and James - we're all behind you for Rio!

GAME, SETT & MATCH

Winter is fast approaching and we all have to prepare. I have put my summer clothes away now and looked out all the warm ones. The log pile is stacked and ready. And we have already had the log burner in action. (Our dogs are stretched in front of it as I write this?)

While I was tidying the garden, I found a hedgehog hiding in a pile of dried leaves that I was about to clear. I carefully packed them back tightly around the sleeping animal. Our bees are treated for varrow mite, have had their honey crop removed and replaced by sugar. We are ready for the cold.

But what about our neighbours? And I don't mean the human ones. Bollington is blessed with a thriving population of badgers. What do they do when the weather turns towards winter? Well, actually they are very bus.

Autumn is the main time for courtship. If you hear strange grunts and squeals, don't blame the local youth. It could actually be badger romance. About now they are eating as much as they can to build up the fat reserves which they live on during the winter months. This means that they might be seen searching for worms and leatheriackets (crane fly Januae) in your lawn and they are not tidy when they do this! Spring is another peak time for this too. Their sense of smell is said to be 700 to 800 times better than ours. This belos them to find their way around and to find food. They are omnivorous by nature, eating many plants, berries and nuts when available and animal food, mainly earthworms and large numbers of beetles and grubs. They will also eat small animals so my hedgehog needs to be careful.

My neighbour is a badger specialist. She says that there are many active sets around Bollington and the surrounding area. However, as badgers are living through such threatening times, the location of these has to remain secret for their own protection. Secret or not, they are often seen trotting purposefully about after dark. Maybe by people wending a groggy way home from the publ They have poor eyesight for details and good hearing and so if you stand very still and quiet you might have a good view. Be aware though that they are strong animals, with sturdy claws and are very capable of defending themselves if necessary.

Badgers do not hibernate but become less active during the winter months. In spring they are very hungy, but think twice about feeding your badger neighbours. Once they know there is free food, they will visit regularly, barge through fences, snack on your bulbs and dig holes looking for something tasty. Also, with a ready supply of food, breeding rates increase and problems will multiply.

To have badgers visiting your garden can be exciting though. Hearing a noise at night, looking out through your window and realising that badgers are enjoying a snack from your dustbin could be an You could even try to take a photo. If you have a security light that comes on with movement that would help. Cover your camera equipment as light coloured equipment reflects the light and can scare the animals away. Use a remote shutter control to actually capture the image. To keep them occupied for a short while place a few peanuts on the ground. (Remember that if you are quiet and on the other side of a window they will less able to detect you.) And don't forget to post your best efforts onto the Flickr website. tagged Bollington and badger.

Badgers' biggest challenge now is and their implication in its spread. Cheshire and Shropshire are running a trial vaccination programme this autumn. The move comes in response to Defra's decision to run trial badger culls in Gloucestershire and Soppense.

if you are interested to learn most the Wirral and Cheshire Badger Group have produced a CD called "The Badger's Tale." At £2.99, it talks you through a year in their life, with real sound effects. ANIMAL MAGIC Ingersley Court residents have recently had a wild time with exotic breeds! From furry foxes to calling kookaburras, they welcomed a visit from 'The Animal Lady' and her exotic friends.

The residents took the opportunity to get up-close-and-personal with a variety of wild animals including an iguana, python, red fox, meerkat and kookaburra.

'The Animal Lady', better known as Jill Reynolds, encourages interaction between animals and people by taking a selection from her special brood of over fifty rescued and abandoned animals into schools and care homes.

Clifford Holmes, 81, originally from Bollington, was among residents who stroked the furry friends. He said: "Cetting close to the exotic animals and learning about their different eating habits was very interesting, and something! shared with my family when they came to visit. My favourite animal was the kookaburra, who even made a call on cue!"

The afternoon, which saw residents learn about all things wildlife, from jungles and rainforests to food chains and animal habits, encouraged residents to interact with the animals and learn something new through Jill's popular and hands-on Natural History Presentation.

Animal-assisted therapy like Jill's is becoming increasingly well known for its positive effects on residents' health and wellbeing through the unique form of companionship and therapeutic comfort they provide.

Cheryl Brookes, Activities Coordinator at Ingersley Court, said: "We try to engage our residents with new experiences and we often ask them what activities they would like to do. When one of the residents said she'd always wanted to see a real life snake, we thought the 'Animal Lady' would be a great left.

Jennifer Jones, Home Manager at Ingersley Court, addect: "It is important that our residents enjoy stimulating activities, and so we welcome with from Jill and others like he in the community. Spending time with the animals, while getting to ask questions and learn new things, encourages ofder people to come together, socialise, and recall social memories from the data.

FOR A HEALTHY FUTURE

Bollington Health & Leisure has been serving the community since 1977 and today we are able to provide a gym for over 1000 members, exercise and leisure facilities for hundreds more and renowned swimming classes to thousands of children every week.

We are only able to offer these services because of the determined fundraising of local people in the 1970s and 80s that made it possible for the Centre to be built and stay open through hard times, but the If you would like to get involved or make a donation please contact Centre Manger, Steven Hurst on steven.furst@ bollingtonleisure. co.uk or 01625 574 774 last 35 years has taken its toll on the facilities. The changing rooms are in dire need of removation and we'd like to be able to provide disabled changing facilities too. The pool roof needs re-covering, a job which we can only put off for so long, and there are many other smaller repairs' and improvements that we desperately need to make, all of which require funds.

We are dedicated to providing you with the very best in leisure facilities for years to come, but as we are a registered charity we can't do this alone. All money we make is reinvested in the day-to-day running of the Centre, leaving very little in the pot for projects.

Over the coming months we will be running a series of events, activities and initiatives to raise the funds we need to bring the Centre up to date.

WANDERING ON _ THE RIVER DEAN'S JOURNEY _ PART 3

Ken concludes his article from our previous two issues. Here he traces the journey of the River Dean on its route beyond Bollington, to its confluence with the River Bollin just past Wilmslow. He also considers whether Bollington could make more of a feature of its river.

In these quiet flat fields of Lowerhouse, the free spreads lessly Lowerhouse, the free spreads lessly wide and curls simuously towards Balley and Adligation as though relaxing after a bard time in the Town itself. During the heavy rains the river has been full and dast and evidence of its force can be seen in the eroded banks by the bridge over the river on the road to the Household Woste Recycling Centre. From this point until the river enters the land of the Bollin Way there is little access to it.

The land between Calder Close and Bulley spirvate as are the familiants, in Adlington. There is a path from Holebouse Lane walked by those who do the Boundary Walk each your table last a foothingle across the Dean. The next crossing is at Holebouse Lane, (glance over the bridge walk to read of its contraction) closely followed by Adlibouse Bridge on the London Road near Adlington Farm at Adlington.

The Dean then passes by a wooded secluded house called The Wilderness in the grounds of Adlington Hall. In 1805 Edward Legh complained in the Court of Photographs by Anthony Holland between the Census of 1801 and that of 1851, quadrupling in size. The Doan ambles on under Butley Bridge on Mill Lane.

The river then enters Dairy House Wood, and is joined by Red Brook continuing on to reach the Dearwater Hotel on the Woodford Road. The river swings west after Dean Farm and becomes anonymous and unimportant until it flows under the A34 at Hall Wood.

Here the Dean is confined again as it enters the outskirts of Handforth at Bollinfee Bridge across Dean Road. The railway line into Manchester provides it with a second bordering Her Majesty's Prison and Young Offenders Institution, to reach Twinnies Bridge and a pleasant open picnic site at the confluence by the banks of the Bollin.

It may seem a paradox that one can walk up the first part of the river and the last part up the beautiful Dean Valley into the Peak District itself but we make so little of our view in Bollington. Should we are part of the part of the

DANCE YOURSELF DIZZY

Sarah Ellery is a recently arrived resident of Bollington. She founded the Footboose Dance Academy in Macclesfield in 2009. Moving to Bollington in 2010 with her husband James they enjoyed the sense of community and wanted to become more involved.

Sarah decided to move her classes to the spacious Bollington Civic Hall in the autumn of 2011. This was a big decision but it was the right one!" Sarah explained, adding "New faces from Bollington and surrounding areas joined us and we were soon on a roll.

In December 2011 we put on our first production "It's Showtime". This was an exciting time for the school and the pupils aged between three and fifteen thrived on the buzz of putting on their various costumes and standing up on the stage to perform to a very excited and supportive audience of family and friends. It was a great night."

Into 2012, the pupils continued to progress and clanced their way to their first exam session in July. Sarah added "It was a day to be proud of seeing them all arrive beautifully presented and ready for their big day. They achieved 100% pass rate and were so excited to receive their various awards and certificates in Ballet, Tap and Freestyle."

"Dance is a fantastic way to have fun, be confident and creative, keep fit and make new frends. It has been a fantastic year for the Footloose Dance Academy in Bollington and we look forward to a fun year ahead!" Sarah Ellery

METHODIST CHURCH UPDATE

There is now some hope for the closure threatened Methodist Church in Wellington Road, thanks to the efforts of an enthusiastic group of local people. They want to secure the future of the Church building for continued use by the community.

The Bollington Community Heritagy Trast was initiated by local basinessman, Ches Orme, and set up with the purpose of assing funds to purchase the building and transform it into a fantaset basility of 80 flington and the surrounding area. This would be a preferred use for the building pather than it being developed on a commercial basis. It would enable the many organisations that now use the building to continue to meet there.

Importantly the Church congregation would be able to continue to worship there.

Heather Cann, who is secretary of the Trust, is also involved in the Methodist Church and is keen to retain the Church Buildings for Heather Cann (01625 575576) and Bev Needham (01625 576367) would love to hear from any wouldbe fund raisers or people happy to donate to the church use as part of the community facility. I spoke to Bev Needham, a trust member, about the group. Besis passionate about retaining the church for the community. "We are an enthusiastic core group and would like to encourage people in the community to support us. We must fight to keep the building for our children and the future. Can you imagine Bollington without its Beass Band?"

The Trust has applied for National Lottery Heritage Funding to help towards buying the building and hope to raise more money within

They see the future of the Methodist, Church developed as a commanity space in conjunction with the Arts Centre and the Civic Hall. In the past it has provided a large concert hall 'accommodating visiting brass bands, chors; including the Bollington Festival Choir, and it has been used as exhibition space during the Bollington Festival. The future potential is huge and it could also be used for conferences with additional catering facilities.

Another interesting development has been the interest shown by the Davenpoor Theater Trust who is looking for a home for the pipe organ made homeless when the Davenport. Theatre closed. The Trust already has funding to repair and install the organ and the Methodist Church would be a very suitable home.

On Saturday 13th October the Bollington Community Toust and the many organisations that meet at the Methodist Church held an Open Day to showcase their plans for the future. In the evening there was a programme of popular music played on the organ by Methodist played on the organ by Methodist accompanying, a showing of silent movies. Hopefully by the time this article is read a great dead of interest in the future of this woonderful building will have been generated. Sandy Milliom

IT'S A DOG'S LIFE! OUR READERS RESPOND...

While out walking with my hound along the canal the other day, I stopped to talk with the owner of one of the lived-in boats. Captain Silver, as we shall call him, was always good for fifteen minutes of putting the world to rights on a pleasant Bollington morning.

Having resolved the impasse on reform of the House of Lords, the conversation inexplicably moved on to the recent bad press that was being given locally from some quarters to the believed crimes of local dog owners.

"I can remember when The Rec was really covered in dog waste!" he said, though the word waste never crossed his lips.

The subject of dog pop, whether on pawments, public open pances or shoes, is one that never fails to attract the most emotive and often irrational debate whenever aired. The concern from responsible local dog conners about its airing in the last edition of Bollington Live is that it will end to generate heat rather than light, ultimately to nobody's satisfaction. In turn, that will do nothing to cush the behaviour of the irresponsible minority of ourside size.

Ten years ago when I moved here the problem was far worse. The good narrow boat captain was exactly right. Since then a core group of responsible dog owners have worked hard to improve the situation but with particular focus on The Recreation Ground. Often what has been achieved has been hard won. Only after extraction following life was not not proper to after extensive following did we get an adequate supply of dedicated dop-suses bein installed there by MBC. It took nearly nine years to get MBC/CEC to put up roper motices to inform all uses of the requirements and the penalties. Woltneers have taken part in direct awareness-using and there have been several individual initiatives where posters and they from the penalties of the penalties with the penalties.

There is a substantial dog-cowning 'community' in the village who know each other through their frequent contacts while out walking. It may be a surprise to learn that a decent number of these owners not only pick up any deposits their own dogs make but they remove deposits that irresponsible owners.

own dog make but they remove deposits that irresponsible owners have left behind, such is their commitment to the community. When we have identified specific offenders who do not pick up after their dogs we have taken action through various channels open to us to deal with them. One profilic offender who do his his dogs deposits on the grassed terracing on The Rec. was directly tackled and has handfully now moved from the village.

18 months ago our surveys found an estimated 98% 'pick-up' ra on The Rec, relative to the number of owners exercising their do there. The recent summer figure has been more in the 95% regic but we know that when the dark evenings come the pick-up ra drops. No-one is complacent and further action is planned.

Tarring all dog covners with the same brush and failing to distingui between the 95% responsible owners and the 5% irresponsib ones achieves nothing. The vast majority of local dog covners wou not dream of failing to pick up after their dogs and wose beticle ar cowners found to be failing to pick up from the pavements near where we live!

We need to address the reduced pick-up rate in autumn and winter and we need to find a solution to the continuing problem of certain owners driving their pooches down to open public areas, allowing them to perform, then zooming off in their cars without picking up the mess. Some of these owners appear to come from outside the village, but by no means all.

The management of Bollington Recreation Ground is due to be taken over by Bollington Town Council, Please direct any further concerns to your local councillors

1 just read the piece by Simon Dodd on the dog fouling in Bollington and couldn't agree more. It is a plague! The Recis littered with mess, you could step over several piles in the same metre radius.

We have observed dog owners on The Rec (primarily at dusk - it is when they seem to emerge allowing, indeed encouraging dogs to fool right on the gass, on the cricket pitch, in front of us and our three playing children. Wrice my three year old son has tripped while running on the grass and fallen face down in excrement. He was baside himself, it was awful.

My children built a 'den' under one of the azalea bushes at The Reonce and when we returned the next day to play I had to ban the from entering as it was filled with the dreaded bags of mess. Why bother bagging it if only hang it on the nearest tree branch or fence like some sort of revolting trophy!

Many dog owners seen to have no control over their dogs. They without fail run onto our picnies when laid out. The dog owners yell affectionately but fruitlessly for their pooches to return and then smile ingratiatingly "they're only having a bit of fun!" Well I wouldn't allow my children to run onto someone else's picnic blanket. Even if they did think it was tremendous fun.

blanket. Even if they did think it was tremendous fun.

Dogs should certainly be banned from The Rec as they are our parks, and Bollingsonians should be campaigning to make it so.

PENNIES FROM HEAVEN

Watching the start of the impressive Opening Ceremon impressive Opening Ceremon of the Olympic Games you might have been forgiven for thinking Boilington was its main inspiration! Rolling hills, a village community, the odd cloud in the sky, and then those rising chimneys and factory works, the various political struggles to make the world a "happro vallev".

The hamessing of children's imagination and the calning of all our fears, the provision of universal health care, the freedom to express ourselves through music, song and dance, the respect shown for the older generation and the passing on of the torchlight to the young, not forgetting opportunities along the way for meditation and spiritual growth when faced with life and death situations, encapsulated in the familiar yet all moving hymn

By the time you read this, the Olympic and Paralympic Games will be a distant memory and life will have settled back into a more normal routine of school and work. As the autumn term started St Oswald's Church has begun a new phase in its life. We have been given permission from the Diocesan Chancellor to proceed with the initial improvements to our church building, by creating a new level access main entrance on the opposite side of the church from our existing stepped entrance, complete with new toilet and storage facilities. These works are scheduled to be completed in November.

We hope that these alterations to our church building may prove a real blessing for all who come to share worship or to take part in other activities here, this Christmas and beyond!

Embarking on this exciting new development has been made possible by using the legacy we received from the sale of Holy finity Church in Kerridge, as was envisaged by the Parochial Church Council as part of our decision over four years ago to sell that building.

four years ago to sell that building in other spheres of life, costs are always increasing; and if we are to continue our improvements to the church (principally by refurbing the vestry, improving our lighting and sound systems, creating a new kitchen space, and freeing up more room for worship and other activities within the building, we urgently need to raise additional

HORSING AROUND

22nd July 2012 dawned bright and clear, which was good news for the organisers of the annual Moat Hall Farm Horse Show, Fiona Peters, Zoe Denovan and Nikki Ellis Then the hard work began!

Laving out the courses, ensuring there was enough fruit for the Pimms and of course registering the entrants. More people than ever turned out to support their friends and relatives in their first ever competitive event. The atmosphere was sociable and observers were made to feel welcome

Fiona said, "We would like to pass our thanks to Margaret and Alan Ridgeway, owners of Moat Hall Farm on Clarke Lane, who gave over their garden and land to host the

eventers build their confidence

The show was specifically out on particularly those who have never entered a competition before. It gave them experience of routines and of being judged. For some who had entered in previous years, this was their first-time completion in a higher level event than ever before. Each entrant was given a copy of their score sheet so they could see where they did well and what areas they might need to concentrate on in future lessons.

The standard of competition was judged by the same British Dressage rules as other regular dressage events with one judge per event and one writer of judge's comments. Nikki judged the starters classes and in the afternoon Kate Earthey, a British Dressage judge who gave her time for free which was much appreciated, judged the other classes.

On the day, the overall senior winner was Zoe Denovan riding Just lake while the overall junior winner was Lily Nive riding Dominic,

While the aim of the event was to build skill and confidence, the day also raised money for good causes including Windyways. The whole event was a success, raising money from the BBQ, refreshments and entry fee, and in total over £600 was raised. This year for the first time. Moat Hall Farm was also fundraising for itself to assist the tutelage of pupils and new mirrors for the dressage area are now on order as these are useful for checking posture.

Entrants this year were mostly people who stable their horses at

JOLLY HOCKEY STICKS

A couple of years ago Bollington Live! featured an article about Bollington Ladies bockey club (Issue 48) and gained a fantastic new mid-fielder from the process! We are now here two years later and two divisions higher! Please get in touch!

Feeling inspired by the Olympics? We certainly are after seeing GB medal this summer. Bollington Ladies Hockey Club has been running for over 25 years and the last two seasons have seen successive promotions, reaching the dizzy heights of Division 3 in Cheshire Ladies Hockey League. We may not quite have the technique or indeed fitness of Team GB, but under the Please ring or text: Team Captain Nicola: 07887652131 leadership of our Captain Nicola, we have enjoyed seeing the team improve and progress. Keen to see continued success, we are actively seeking new players and umpires as our numbers have been affected due to University, pregnancy and work commitments.

Ranging from 14 - 50 years old we are a family friendly club and we all enjoy both the sporting and social aspects of the club. We are competitive, but what all of us have in common is the desire to enjoy ourselves and not take anything too seriously. So, it doesn't matter if you're a County player or someone who hasn't picked up a stick since your school days, as long as you can survive the vagaries of the great British weather you will be welcomed. We can provide training and more importantly a new group of friends.

Whether you want to get fit, make friends or in the future represent Ladies is the club for you! The advent of Astroturf hockey some time ago means that we wield our sticks at Kings School, Macclesfield afternoons in our beautiful bright green kit! Training also takes place at Kings on Thursday from 8pm to 9pm. You're welcome to come down or give us a call....

ON YER BIKE!

Interest in cycling has been growing for many years, but the successes in the Tour de France and at the Olympics has moved it up another gear. There are few places in the country better placed to be part of this than Bollington.

The varieties of terrain

The varieties of terrain and cycling that are available in the area were on show at the Bollington Bikefest organised on the 13th September by and the Adelphi Mill. About 300 cyclists of all standards gathered at the Adelphi Mill on a Sunday morning to take part in a sportive event that took in three different tours and raised over £4,000 for a local charity. East Cheshire Hospice. The three routes showed off the variety available around Bollington: Twenty is Plenty, the Bolly Bash and the Grimshaw Grueller

The Twenty is Plenty was a 20 km (12.5 mile) cycle ride along the Middlewood Way from Bollington to Marple (for those that went to the end of the Middlewood Way, it was a 22 km ride). This is the ride that 1 took with the rest of my family my wife Yvonne and three kids. Emily (13), Susan (11) and Connor (9)). A ride on the level, ride on the level, which is off road the whole way and where the scenery changes around you, is a fantastic way to get kids to enjoy

When we returned to the Adelphi Mill for the Adelph

Derbyshire Bridge to Cradbach and back up to the Cat and Fiddle before returning to Bollington via Rainow, in total an impressive 70 miles with more than 4,000ft of climb. I do not think I; am un to doing

1 do not think I am up to doing the 70 miles next year, but I certainly want to do the 40 miles. It will be hard to choose for my kidd, who want to choose for my kidd, who want to the Middlewood Way but could find 40 miles a bit too.

much for them.

Erijoying the barbeque and having a drink at the end of the sportive with the other cyclist made them feel part of a cycling community and connected to those that take on the fills.

that take on the hills.

By bringing younger riders into a cycling event the organisers of the Bollington Bikefest may have given one youngster a little encouragement to taking up cycling as a sport.
